Integration

We realise that many companies provide other services. At Midsoft we have created a whole suite of systems that can be used on their own or integrated with each other.

We can link to a number of accounts packages such as Sage, Xero and Quickbooks or you can add our accounts package, Summarium to your system. This saves hours of work creating invoices and updating ledgers.

Installation

Installing our software is so simple we offer potential customers a free trial to prove it. Although we offer a full on-site installation and training service, many customers opt to install the software themselves. You can be up and running within 60 minutes by just removing our trial data and spending a few minutes setting things up. You can call us if you get stuck as the software includes 12 months technical support which is renewable each year.

Support

It doesn't matter how good and easy to use software is, users will still need to discuss problems or may require additional assistance. Our support is second to none. All our software incorporates a remote support system, so not only can you talk to a friendly, knowledgeable person you can show them the problem and they usually fix it or explain it to you while you are online.

How to buy

Simply call or e-mail us. After we arrange payment we issue you with a serial number to unlock your Trial version.

Bespoke Programming

Although we believe our off the shelf systems offer the best features, there are times when our customers require something more tailored to their own business. We have a portfolio of 20 years worth of systems to draw from when starting new projects. This means that we never have to start completely from scratch, so we can borrow from other systems that have been working for years. All this ensure that we can have your system up and running quicker than the competition and with fewer problems. Usually customers see something they like in one of our existing Systems and use that as a base to work from. If you require something more suited to your own business contact us for a free demonstration and quotation.
